Al Thumama Stadium achieves major work safety milestone

Al Thumama Stadium has achieved a significant milestone by becoming the latest FIFA World Cup 2022 project site to reach one million man-hours without a lost time injury. The major milestones were reached following the implementation of the Countrywide Programme for Delivery & Logistics in cooperation with Al Thumama Stadium’s main contractor, a joint venture between Al Jaber Engg. Llc and Alshaya Con- struction and project manager, ECM Qatar, and is implemented by the State of Qatar’s Ministry of Labour. “We are very proud to achieve this milestone. The health and the safety of our workers is our number one priority – and milestones like this only serve to illustrate that fact,” said Eng Sanaa Al Rehaibi, SC Project Director, Al Thumama Stadium Engr. Abdul Al Baker, the SC’s Health & Safety Manager.

Al Thumama Stadium will host matches up to and including the quarter-final stage during Qatar 2022.

Anglers return to Corniche with fishing rods

British Council resumes in-person English courses in Qatar

Angling is also an opportunity for parents to teach their children patience. After waiting for hours, children learn a valuable lesson — good things come to those who wait.

We prefer this fresh fish compared to the ones at malls because we don’t know for how many days it was kept in the freezer,” said Taher, who has been angling at the Doha Corniche for years. “I like fishing with a hook and, have become accustomed to it for a long time. I come regularly to the Doha Corniche, and sometimes go to other beaches in Qatar, whether in summer or winter. I have noticed a strong presence of different nationalities here, and their number is constantly increasing.”

The Corniche has an impact on me, as the masses of fisherman motivate him to practice this hobby, “as the masses of fishermen lining up on the Doha Corniche has an impact on me, to put it mildly. They stay for hours, every day, enjoying the sea and talking about some values, most notably patience.”

When asked how much they catch in a day, many anglers said the number or the quantity did not matter to them. Rather it is the hobby they are there for. “Sometimes we catch a few kilograms of fish, and on other days we do not catch anything. But at the end, we are satisfied with the pleasure of staying for hours in this wonderful atmosphere. It is the best thing that takes us out of a continuous workflow. It is distinct and wonderful.”

The British Council has resumed face-to-face English courses in Qatar for the start of the new school term. Classes for secondary students, primary students and adults will run from next month and they will be combined with online guided learning that students can do independently at home.

“The news comes on the back of local health authority and government guidance and sees the teaching centres adhere to a number of health and safety measures in line with government guidance. These will be kept under review and our classes can be delivered online if necessary,”

Over the last few months, we have successfully brought our classes online through a new learning platform and this has made it possible for students to continue to learn with us. It has also given us the opportunity to gather feedback and shape and develop our offer to deliver the best possible learning experience. By combining face-to-face classes with online learning, we are confident that we can prepare our students for global challenges with 21st century skills."

Currently there are a number of English courses available with the British Council. These include Primary Plus, which is suitable for children aged six to 11. It is designed to be child-friendly and fun as well as high quality engaging materials — including lots of varied activities, videos and quizzes. DOHA TODAY
The education sector has demonstrated flexibility, adaptability, resilience and courage in its response.

Hancock, Partner at PwC (PricewaterhouseCoopers), a multinational professional services network of firms headquarted in the US, discussed the difficulties of the last six months, but it has demonstrated flexibility, adaptability, resilience and courage in its response.

According to Hancock, the outbreak of COVID-19 and the protocol to protect students from coronavirus infection and its efficacious because positive cases are declining. He said that the health and safety of the students in schools is a top priority for the Ministry of Education and Higher Education, calling parents to distance themselves from negativity and rumours.

This fast-tracked teaching and learning model will have long-lasting effects on future delivery and quality. It is unlikely that current temporary practices will continue in the same way once COVID-19 is behind us. It is clear that experimentation in the classroom is not impossible, nor is it rare,” he told The Peninsula.

The last six months showed that flexibility, shared practices, and new approaches like the introduction of global teaching resources supported by local tutoring are possible and can in some cases even replace learning experiences.

“Of course, challenges related to COVID-19 continues to arrive. The region has seen some impact on demographic growth which will affect demand for places and the planned opening of Qatar’s higher education and private schools, and universities will enter a serious period of pandemic planning,” said Hancock.

This offers an opportunity to focus on new priorities, including enhancing the student experience, value for money and making quality of provision paramount for the learners and their parents looking for the best option for their children,” he said.

According to Hancock, the region’s commitment to blended learning means that adjustment to any changing circumstances will be easier to implement. Institutions will also be prioritising key support services for learners. On top of new processes such as face mark image, safety protocols and the limitation of extracurricular activities, schools can help on focusing on these elements of being at school that matters most to them, he said.

At higher education and vocational levels the risk of the lecture has perhaps been effectively replaced, even enhanced, in certain institutions by remote options, but tutorial groups, lab and technology access, social spaces, clubs and societies are not as easy to offer without interpersonal interaction.

“This re-emphasis will need a focused re-skilling of staff to support the needs of students,” said Hancock.

Institutions are increasingly cautious about future funding, as well as student welfare, with concerns about the financial sustainability of their operations emerging as a priority according to recent surveys conducted by PwC in the region.

Hancock said that reducing costs and improving governance around risk is increasingly important to enable Qatar’s universities to continue to thrive, as Qatar University has, becoming the first Qatari university to be ranked in the top 350 globally according to Times Higher Education rankings released recently. The education sector has been turned on its head by the difficulties of the last six months, but it has demonstrated flexibility, adaptability, resilience and courage in its response.

There is an opportunity to use this moment to make significant changes for the better in order to bring education to the students, and hold them ready for whatever the future offers,” said Hancock.
How to fight back against coronavirus vaccine phobia

Fires, fears and gun alarm on Qatar’s wild west coast

As the fire raced through, the blaze devoured the mobile home, a 10 by 15 feet structure, in a matter of minutes.

Everything else, she says, is in the blackened remains of her home, which they moved out of to escape the fire. The steel and glass of the home melted and the walls were gone.

It is one of scenes of turmoil that the government will have to deal with as it tries to stamp out the fires and prevent them from spreading.

But there’s little left in the ashes. As the fire raced through, the house was left a charred shell, with its walls and roof completely destroyed.

For those seeking to protect people from Covid-19, vaccine phobia will be a special problem for those who are convinced that doing so will protect somebody’s mother or grandmother.

EU wants ‘credible’ Lebanon govt before more blast aid

The European Union’s commission chief said on Friday it was called for the urgent formation of a “credible” government in Lebanon before a second phase of financial aid from wealthy Gulf countries can be released.

Janez Lenarcic said the EU had mobilized €10 billion (US$12.4 billion) for the reconstruction of Beirut and other Lebanese cities devastated by the blast that killed more than 150 people and wounded thousands in Beirut on August 4.

The next round of funding would be approved, he said, but warned it would have to take place after a government was formed because the international community was not willing to support practices “that led to financial collapse and economic crisis”.

The tragedy occurred when hundreds of tonnes of ammonium nitrate fertiliser that had been left unmonitored in a port warehouse exploded.

The government resigned in the wake of the disaster, but failed to form a new Cabinet after a month-long political vacuum, and the next government is yet to be formed.

Lebanon’s parliamentary Speaker said last month the way the Prime Minister-designate was forming a new Cabinet and that it would not be ready until a new government had been formed. The Cabinet was to be presented by the solution to the crisis, which is currently being held as a “hostage” of the international community.

Lenarcic said a new government must be formed as soon as possible, “so that we can return to normalcy.”

He said it would have to be a “credible government” that enjoys the confidence not only of the people but is also willing to find solutions “in all directions”.

Lenarcic said the EU had provided a humanitarian aid package worth €300 million to help the needy.

Lenarcic’s political class eventually agreed to this demand and it is also the international community’s expectation. “I am talking about governance not only economic reforms. There has to be a change in the way this place is governed,” he said.

Lenarcic’s worst economic crunch since the 1975-1990 civil war when local currency plunged against the US dollar and led to corruption and a financial collapse.

Lenarcic said tackling an agreement with the IMF should be the priority of the new government.

Lenarcic said it was ready to “redouble its efforts” to reach a new agreement with the IMF to help Lebanon get back on track.

Lenarcic added that he will not join on those terms, but that he would still support the need for reconstruction, Janez Lenarcic, the European Commission’s vice president for crisis management, said the country has recorded a total of 23,669 COVID-19 cases, including 239 deaths since an explosion in Beirut on August 4.

Lenarcic said that, with the confidence of the Lebanese people, it is determined to make it an “absolutely priority” to get her home for Christmas.

Mali’s popular opposition movement has rejected a charter proposed by the junta-backed government headed by the army’s top general, Colonel Colonel Assimi Goita.

The military junta has ruled Mali since a 2021 coup and has a 19-month transition government, which it has scheduled for debate in a three-day forum with political party leaders and civil society representatives.

Ministers of Justice and Security, Moussa Faki, announced an “official statement” on Friday, after the talks took place. The statement did not provide a view of the junta’s proposal, but it said it would be presented to the National Assembly.

“Afghanistan, the region, Pakistan, the United States and other central and key powers need to resolve their differences through dialogue and establish a secure and lasting order,” said the government’s spokesman.

UK’s former leaders unite to slam Johnson over Brexit plan

Two former British prime ministers have made rare remarks in bringing peace to bitter party divisions yesterday, as they urged lawmakers to reject plans that they said would undermine the Brexit deal with the European Union. The two former premiers hinted that it was worth the Assad regime’s decision in 1970 to stop sailing with the British Royal Navy in the Mediterranean, an action that shaming it self and embarrasting the nation, they said.

The planned legislation, which will be debated at the end of this week, has led to a call for the government to resign. It is the highest-level rebel show of strength that the United Kingdom has seen since it joined the European Union in 1973.

The British government has admitted that it would break international law, but it has stood by its policy for that potential - It’s a deviation from the policy that is needed to be kept out. The plan was announced by Prime Minister Boris Johnson, in the wake of the country’s mass vaccination programme.
