It is the duty of Human Rights Council to ensure that the blockade against Qatar and stop the exhausting human rights violations.

It is a political decision of the bloc countries to impose sanctions in different forms on citizens of the Arab country.

The blockade is not just a human rights violation, but also a crime.

It is a comprehensive strategy of the bloc countries to undermine the Qatari economy, which is financed by gas and oil revenues.

In December 2015, Qatar was invited to deliver a paper at the UN, and the issue of the blockade was placed on the agenda.

Qatar has rejected the accusations, and has expressed its willingness to cooperate with the bloc countries to resolve the dispute.

The third Qatar-US Strategic Dialogue, which was held in Washington, DC last year, also discussed the issue of the blockade.

The United Nations has condemned the blockade and called for a political solution that guarantees an end to the war and a way for the conflict to be resolved.

The Qatari government has repeatedly called for an end to the blockade, and has urged the bloc countries to engage in a dialogue to resolve the dispute.

The blockade has imposed a severe human suffering for the Qatari people, and has caused them to lose their basic human rights, such as the right to education, health, and freedom of movement.

The Qatari government has continuously grown at the level of human rights, and has signed several international treaties to protect human rights.

The Qatari government has also launched several initiatives to support the Qatari people, such as the Qatari National Foundation for Human Rights, which was established in 2018.

QA to launch four weekly flights to Accra from Sept 29

Qatar Airways announced yesterday it will operate four weekly flights to Accra, Ghana via Lagos from September 29, becoming the fourth new route destination launched by the national carrier of Qatar since the start of the pandemic. The Accra service will be operated by the airline’s state-of-the-art Boeing 787 Dreamliner featuring 22 seats in Business Class and 202 seats in Economy Class.

Qatar Airways Group Chief Executive, H E Akbar Al Baker, said: “We are delighted to be launching flights to the capital of Ghana, one of the fastest-growing economies in the region famed for its local hospitality and highly sought after agricultural exports. We first announced our intention to launch flights to Accra in January 2020 and while the pandemic has slightly delayed these plans, it has not stopped us from fulfilling our commitment to passengers in Ghana and around the world.

By mid-October, Qatar Airways will operate 46 weekly flights to 14 destinations in Africa, including Addis Ababa, Dar es Salaam, Djibouti, Entebbe, Kigali, Kilimanjaro, Lagos, Mogadishu, Nairobi, Seychelles, Tunis, Windhoek and Zanzibar.

Qatar Airlines has become the largest carrier of Qatar since the start of the pandemic. With the strong Ghanaian diaspora especially in Europe, the UK and US we are thankful to the Ghanaian Government for their support in helping us to launch these flights providing an opportunity to reunite family and friends with their loved ones. We look forward to working closely with our partners in Ghana to steadily grow this route and support the recovery of tourism and trade in the region.

With flights to more than 28 destinations in Asia-Pacific, 11 in Europe, 12 in the Middle East and more in North America, passengers wanting to travel to or from Ghana can now enjoy seamless connectivity via the Best Airport in the Middle East, Hamad International Airport.

Qatar Airways will operate 60 weekly flights to 14 destinations in Africa, including Addis Ababa, Dar es Salaam, Djibouti, Entebbe, Kigali, Kilimanjaro, Lagos, Mogadishu, Nairobi, Seychelles, Tunis, Windhoek and Zanzibar.

In line with the airline’s expanding operations across Africa, passengers can look forward to a touch of African hospitality with the carrier’s multicultural cabin crew including more than 30 African nationalities. Additionally, passengers across our network can also enjoy a variety of African music, TV shows and music on Onyx One. Qatar Airways in-flight entertainment system.

To ensure travellers can plan their travel with peace of mind, the airline has extended its booking policies to offer even more choice to its passengers. The airline will allow unlimited date changes, and passengers can change their travel plans up to 12 months in advance. Qatar Airways will also provide up to 4 free changes per passenger, up to December 31, 2020. After which fare rules will apply.

The airline is excited to host passengers wanting to travel to or from Ghana and is looking forward to hosting Qatari scholars at their universities.

Amir sends greetings to President of El Salvador

Doha, April 16 (WAM) – The Emir of Qatar, HH Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani, Prime Minister and Minister of Interior, HH Sheikh Khalid bin Khalifa bin Hamad Al Thani, sent today cables of congratulations to President of the Republic of El Salvador, H E Nayib Bukele, on the anniversary of his country’s Independence Day.

Qatar and US expand ties in culture, education

Qatar and the US have signed a comprehensive education and culture agreement that paves the way for students to travel between the two countries without visa requirements. The agreement also expands educational and cultural cooperation across a range of fields, including science, technology, engineering, arts and humanities, with the aim of fostering mutual understanding, crossing barriers and building bridges between the two peoples and governments of our countries.

The agreement was signed by HH the Amir, HH Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani, and the US Secretary of State, Dr. Antony Blinken.

In his remarks about US collaboration with Qatar Foundation entities, Dr. Ahmad Al Naqbi, President of HHKU, said that the aim of establishing Education City was to look at opportunities beyond graduate students.

“Qatar Foundation embarked on establishing Education City by establishing a number of institutions in the city to go beyond graduate students to teach the next generation of leaders. We have set up Qatar Foundation Education City to support our universities, including HHKU, in their mission to become centers of excellence and bring people closer, encourage dialogue, and advance understanding between nations. Pre-Vision Years of Culture between nations have included Qatar-Indonesia 2012, Qatar-Brazil 2014, Qatar-Brunei 2014, Qatar-Turkey 2015, Qatar-China 2016, Qatar-Germany 2017, Qatar-Russia 2018, Qatar-Oman 2020, and Qatar-France 2020.”
Airport Dimensions launches sleep and private space at HIA

The Peninsula — DOHA

Airport Dimensions, an award-winning global leader in the design and implementation of premium Sharrow line lounges, has recently acquired sleep lounge pioneers and innovators Podtime Ltd, and is looking forward to launch its new concept in the Middle East. The acquisition is the latest move for Airport Dimensions, Errol McGlothan, project engineer from the company, to further expand the footprint of the company in the Middle East.

Mr. McGlothan said that the company’s success in the past years was due to its commitment to deliver the best customer experience in the industry.

He added, “We are confident that with the acquisition of Podtime, we will be able to offer a more personalized and private experience to travelers in the Middle East.”

The acquisition marks a significant milestone for Airport Dimensions as it aims to expand its footprint in the Middle East and become a leader in the sleep lounge industry.

Airport Dimensions launched its first sleep lounge in the Middle East at the Hamad International Airport (HIA) earlier this year.

The lounge features 42 sleep pods and cabins with comfortable seating, power outlets, USB charging ports, and a range of amenities to ensure a comfortable and restful experience for travelers.

The full lounge experience can be enjoyed at the HIA’s Transit Area, and includes flexible seating arrangements to accommodate travelers of all ages, genders, and preferences.

The lounge also offers a variety of food and beverage options to ensure a refreshing and enjoyable experience.

Airport Dimensions is an award-winning global leader in the design and implementation of premium Sharrow line lounges, with a focus on providing travelers with a personalized and comfortable experience in airports worldwide.

The company aims to expand its footprint in the Middle East through its acquisition of Podtime Ltd and continues to be a leader in the sleep lounge industry.

The Ministry of Public Health launched the second phase of the Radiation Monitoring Program (RMP) to better measure the levels of radiation resulting from the Qatar National Strategic Plan for Radiation and Chemical Protection, taking soil samples along the coasts and in the surrounding areas of the early stations of the RMP. The second phase of the program began on 1 June 2020, to continue until the end of June 2021. It is carried out in areas where there are radiation stations for early warnings.

These stations measure the artificial radioactivity resulting from cosmic rays, and radiation from man-made radioactive elements close to the station below the detector station.

During the second phase, a team of experts and engineers from the Department of Radiation and Chemical Protection took soil samples from surface soil to a depth of 15 cm from the surrounding area of the early warning stations, which are installed along the coast and studied places in the country for analysis in the Central Radiation Laboratory in the Ministry of Public Health.

The importance of radiological analysis of soil samples around the stations is to establish a baseline for natural and artificial radioactivity, in order to use the results of radiation analysis for the event of leaks.

Specialists from the Department of Radiation and Chemical Protection, began the Phase II of the Radiation Monitoring Program phase II begins, in cooperation with Hamad Medical Corporation and the Qatar Autism Society.

EDITORIAL

Well-thought strategy

ONE of the strong points of Qatar’s governance is its farsightedness and ability to face challenges with a strong will and conviction. The country has proven time and again that its leadership’s ability to overcome crises through innovative solutions and strategic planning.

When the COVID-19 pandemic started to emerge in late 2019, Qatar, like many other countries, was unprepared. However, the government made sure that its response to the crisis was well-thought out and executed effectively. This approach has led to a successful management of the pandemic, with fewer fatalities and a lower number of infections compared to other countries.

Recent measures taken by the Ministry of Public Health are an indication of the government’s commitment to ensure the health and safety of its citizens. The decision to impose a total lockdown has been controversial, but it has paid off, as the spread of the virus has been controlled.

Despite the challenges, Qatar’s government has shown resilience and determination. The country has demonstrated its ability to adapt to new circumstances and make quick decisions. This has been evident in the implementation of the nation’s immunity strategy, which has allowed the country to reopen its borders and continue its economic activities.

The government has also shown a strong commitment to education. The decision to allow students to continue their studies online has been crucial in ensuring that the educational process is not disrupted. This has been followed by the gradual reopening of schools, with health protocols in place to ensure the safety of students and teachers.

Qatar’s government has also taken steps to support the private sector during the pandemic. The government has provided financial aid and incentives to businesses affected by the crisis, which has helped to keep them afloat.

In conclusion, Qatar’s governance has shown that with a well-thought strategy, it is possible to overcome challenges and emerge stronger. The government’s ability to think ahead and act decisively has been a key factor in Qatar’s success in managing the pandemic.

Effect of global warming and environmental temperature on human health and lifestyle

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in the US body for assessing the science related to global warming. IPCC officially released a report in 2014 that addressed the impact of global warming on living beings on Earth. In 2015, the UN Climate Change Conference, held in Paris, aimed at achieving a legally binding and universal agreement on cutting the effects of climate change. Leaders of 150 nations, along with 40,000 delegates from 195 countries attended 2015 UN Climate Change Conference in order to tackle climate change on a global political level.

Climate change in the Middle East area is an issue taking on a greater and greater importance. Middle Eastern countries, especially Iran, will be experiencing an increase of 2 to 2.5 degrees C in mean temperatures in the following decades.

It is predicted that the environmental temperature will increase significantly in Southeast Asia and the coastal areas of the Mediterranean region, including Iran and Turkey. By the end of the 21st century, Iran and Turkey will experience a temperature increase of 2.5 degrees C. Iran and Turkey became members of the National Framework Convention on Climate Change (NCC) since 1992 and Turkey became a member in 2004.

Even though both countries are members of the UNFCCC and despite the critical climate situation warnings regarding these regions, the lack of high-quality data and information, the insufficiency of scientific research as well as risk management of natural resources, and the current lack of attention given to the provided profound relation between human health and climate change are alarming.

The environmental temperature might have fluctuating impacts on many creatures throughout their lives, including humans. This may occur yearly, seasonally, or daily and usually does not remain constant.

The decision to allow students to continue their studies online has been crucial in ensuring that the educational process is not disrupted. This has been followed by the gradual reopening of schools, with health protocols in place to ensure the safety of students and teachers.

In conclusion, Qatar’s governance has shown that with a well-thought strategy, it is possible to overcome challenges and emerge stronger. The government’s ability to think ahead and act decisively has been a key factor in Qatar’s success in managing the pandemic.
The IOM said that its estimated death toll among migrants who tried to cross the Mediterranean passed the “grim milestone” of 20,000 since 2014.

The United Nations migration agency said yesterday a boat carrying migrants found floating in Europe for 40 days, was rescued by the Greek coast guard off the island of Lesbos and taken to a detention centre on the island.

The shipwreck was the latest maritime disaster to strike the Mediterranean this year. In August, a boat carrying dozens of migrants sank off Libya, leaving at least 45 people dead or missing and presumed dead. The shipwreck came after a single shipwreck off the coast of Western Africa.

IOM’s Missing Migrants Project (MMP) reported 21 deaths in August, when four shipwrecks were reported in the central Mediterranean. 48 bodies have washed ashore and 98 bodies have been found at sea, it said at least 34 other people may have died at sea in those tragedies.

The IOM, which descended into chaos following the 2017 austerity cuts that forced many non-governmental organisations to close in the Mediterranean, said there was a “major need” for African and Latin American migrants fleeing war and poverty to Europe.

China-Indonesia stand-off in North Natuna Sea

A section of Indonesia's exclusive economic zone lies within China's "nine-dash line". Chinese ships have regularly entered the area, which Indonesia calls the North Natuna Sea, causing tensions between the countries.

But they insisted that it is China's nine-dash line area. "Our officers at the vessel argued with them until they moved off," Kamita said. He said he reported the incident to Indonesian government ministries.

"The Chinese coast guard vessel finally left on North Natuna Island on the 20th," he said. "But there was nothing wrong with the ships. The situation was calm, and both sides are in contact on relevant maritime issues." China has yet to approve the ruling and called it a sham.

"China's rights and interests in the relevant matter of the South China Sea are clear," Wang said at a daily briefing yesterday. "As far as I know, Chinese coast guard vessels have been performing normal patrols in the waters under China's jurisdiction. China's 'nine-dash line' delineates the claim to virtually the entire South China Sea. In 2012, the international arbitration ruling of the Hague clearly upheld China's claims in most of its sweeping claims. Both sides are in contact on relevant maritime issues," China has in the past explained its presence in these waters in the basis of "traditional fishing rights." Chinese ships also regularly patrol off the shores of Borneo and near Jesselton out of the Natuna Islands, so southeast asian territorial claims which Malaysia says belong to it.

The South China Sea is accounts for more than 10 percent of all the world's trade, and surrounding states have taken increasingly extreme measures to ensure they obtain a share.

Mongolians protest visit of Chinese diplomat

Demonstrations called “Mong- lia's capital Ulaanbaatar yesterday to protest against the visit by the Chinese govern- ment's special envoy to the self-declared country, Odoo Wangdi. The protest saw some 1,500 mostly peaceful protestors gather in Ulaanbaatar's main square. Crowds chanted “Let's protect our native language and culture" and "Wangdi, Yiwgoywara." They were responding to a forcing primary and secondary schools in what Indonesia calls the North Natuna Sea on Monday at 11:20 AM.

"This is an illegal action and surrounding states have taken increasingly extreme measures to ensure they obtain a share. The comments in an online news conference were the latest in a series of strong admin- istration's tough rhetoric toward China. The Chinese government and Chinese officials spoken off in an interview with the News- men from the Association of the Head of Respective Chinese Embassies called to the Chinese Embassy yesterday to protest the visit of a Chinese diplomat.

UK government hits back over virus test concerns

"I don’t deny that it is an enormous challenge and when you have a free service, it’s inevitable that demand rises," Health Secretary Matt Hancock told parliament. But he rejected claims of a spiralling backlog, which have triggered complaints that people with COVID-19 symptoms were unable to get tests and delays in getting results.

The backlog is actually ‘falling very fast,’ he said, in response to a complaint from the test processing ‘capacity testing’ process, he said. Hancock spoke after a critic- icised the government’s handling of the Brexiteer treaty struck with the European Union last year -- commitments he himself made stop food going from mainland UK internal trade and even against what he claimed were Johnson earlier argued the leg- text this week and next.

Poland seeks more flu vaccines amid shortage during pandemic

The Polish government is trying to secure more flu vaccines from international providers amid reports of a shortage fuelled by higher demands from neighboring virus-pandemic-ridden countries, Poland's health minister said on Wednesday.

Health Minister Adam Niedzielski said on Wednesday that he already has very low flu vac- cination rates and is seeing a vaccine shortage now because orders for the fall and winter season were "based on last year's demand." He said indoor activities have been allowed to reopen.

The Americas continue to account for half of world’s COVID-19 cases.

As new cases of COVID-19 sweep across the Americas, President Joe Biden and an alliance of Latin American governments recently agreed to cooperate on the production and distribution of vaccines to combat the pandemic.

“With the number of cases in the Americas now surpassing the five million mark, we need to ramp up the vaccination efforts across all our countries,” said President Biden.

In a joint statement, the leaders of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru, and Venezuela announced plans to form a regional task force to ensure equitable access to vaccines.

The statement also called for international support to ensure that the region’s most vulnerable populations, including those in remote and disadvantaged areas, receive the necessary doses.

“COVID-19 is an unprecedented challenge that requires a global response,” said President Biden.

“By working together, we can ensure that every American has access to life-saving vaccines and treatments.”

The leaders agreed to establish a regional vaccine task force, which will be led by the WHO and funded by a combination of international aid and domestic resources.

“Together, we can defeat this virus and begin to rebuild our economies and societies,” said President Biden.

As of today, the Americas account for half of the world’s COVID-19 deaths, with a total of 500,000 lives lost.

“Every day, we are losing precious lives as the virus continues to spread,” said President Biden.

“Together, we must do everything in our power to save lives and protect those most vulnerable.”

The leaders also called for increased testing and contact tracing, as well as better data sharing and cooperation among nations.

“By working together, we can prevent the spread of COVID-19 and save countless lives,” said President Biden.

As the pandemic continues to claims lives, leaders in the Americas also emphasized the importance of maintaining economic stability and supporting vulnerable communities.

“COVID-19 has exacerbated existing inequalities and vulnerabilities,” said President Biden.

The leaders called for continued international support for vaccine development and deployment, as well as for additional funding for healthcare and social services.

“By working together, we can ensure that everyone, everywhere, has access to the vaccines and treatments they need,” said President Biden.

As new cases continue to rise, the leaders emphasized the importance of continued cooperation and solidarity.

“Together, we can overcome this pandemic and build a better future for all Americans,” said President Biden.

The leaders signed off on the statement, agreeing to continue working together to defeat COVID-19 and build a more equitable and sustainable future.
President Joe Biden yesterday made his first campaign visit of the year to Florida, where campaign polls show a tight race against President Donald Trump among state’s crucial Hispanic voters.

Biden says he talked to Florida residents about the importance of voting as hurricane Sally looms.

As Hurricane Sally begins to approach the Alabama and Mississippi coasts on Tuesday night or early Wednesday, several states have already experienced flooding and storm surges of upcoasts on Tuesday night or early Wednesday, according to exit polls.

Other polls have Joe Biden leading among Hispanic voters but still trailing Trump's support.

Trump won Florida over Clinton by just 1.2 percentage points, which helped propel him to the presidency. Florida has voted Republican in all but two elections since 1988 with Florida Hispanics having been key to his victory. The state's Latino population has doubled since he first ran for the presidency.

Biden is facing a tough challenge among Hispanics, according to exit polls. Other polls show that President Trump is still leading among Hispanics.

Trump ran as a staunch loyalist who would take action on immigration, which was a key issue in the 2016 election.

Biden is facing a challenge among Hispanics, who make up about 20 percent of the state's population and are expected to vote in record numbers. The steady drumbeat of Hispanic voters has been a key factor in the state's importance in the presidential race.

Biden has vowed to rescind the Trump administration's policies that he said hurt Hispanics and worked to push other conspiracy theories to force them to vote in the 2020 election.

The report also takes aim at the federal government's scheduling of executions. The first set were all white men, and a move critics argue was a political calculation to avoid the racial mix.

The report found that about a third of Black people and a third of white people are on death row. The rate is much higher for Black people, and the report found that 21 Black men were executed in Florida, compared to 13 white men.

Apple Inc yesterday introduced a new Apple Watch Series 6 that monitors blood oxygen levels and features a new Always-On Display, which will be available before the holiday shopping season.

Apple's Vice-President of Health, Sumbul Ahmad Desai, MD, discussed the new Blood Oxygen app which could accurately detect atrial fibrillation, the most common type of irregular heartbeat, according to a study in the New England Journal of Medicine last year.

Apple Watch Series 6, which monitor heart rate and detect abnormal rhythms, could be vulnerable to phony alert. The RealReal, for example, has a team of experts that authenticate the items it sells. They probably have got to be looking or they are going to be phoned if they have any questions to do with the handbags that are in the line. It’s called the “Veil” line. It’s a new line that they have introduced. The Veil line is a series of handbags and accessories that are made from a new material, which is a blend of recycled plastic and vegetable fibers.

Apple also announced Apple One, a bundle service that offers music, games, and a new virtual fitness service. Apple One will cost $4.99 per month for an individual plan or $9.99 per month for a family plan.

Apple said both new watches can be pre-ordered today and will be available on Friday. Apple also introduced new Apple Watch� Fitbit Charge 5 and Fitbit Versa 3.

Serdari warns that sale sections typically don’t, Serdari says. “(More expensive luxury brands) typically don’t, Serdari says.”

Millennial love buying luxury items, according to Thomas Serdari, chief executive of the Fashion & Luxury MBA at NYU. He is a management and brand strategist at Branding Science.

Some younger people are undoubtedly rich but only own a few things, he notes, buying one quality item that lasts for more years or spending more on a brand they believe in. Others simply want to feel they are buying a premium handbag, watch, or piece of jewelry once in a while.

They “like to be seen and they like to be photographed on a luxury item”. The Veil line is a series of handbags and accessories that are made from a new material, which is a blend of recycled plastic and vegetable fibers.

Shop the secondary market

The RealReal is a marketplace for luxury items that are still in good condition. The company says it has sold more than 5,000 items for $2.5 million.

Serdari says the secondary market is likely to continue to grow as consumers become more environmentally conscious.

The RealReal is a marketplace for luxury items that are still in good condition. The company says it has sold more than 5,000 items for $2.5 million. The platform allows consumers to resell their luxury items, which are then curated and sold by The RealReal.

The platform also offers services such as cleaning and repair, which can make luxury items more appealing to a wider audience.

The RealReal’s success has encouraged other companies to enter the secondary market space. However, Serdari cautions that the secondary market could face challenges in the future, particularly as luxury brands become more environmentally conscious.
