Qatar committed to providing quality patient care

The Peninsula - DOHA

The Ministry of Public Health (MoPH) has partnered with Qatar Airways and talabat to deliver the boxes to seven charities. Qatar Airways Cargo shipped the 100 tonnes of aid on fully loaded Boeing 777 freighters. Since the aid programme was launched on September 12, thousands of tonnes of relief supplies to Sudan following the devastating impact of the floods in the country, with hundreds of thousands of people affected. "I have been touched by the large volume of donations from our employees and members of the public in Qatar who have come together as a community to support our brothers and sisters in Sudan," said H E Akbar Al Baker, CEO of Qatar Airways. Al Baker added."Qatar Charity continues distributing aid to those in need under the supervision of the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, H E Akbar Al Baker," he said.

"I would like to express our gratitude to our employees and members of our sister airlines, partners Qatar Charity, Ali Bin Ali Holding and talabat who have joined us in this effort to bring the largest number of people to safety in Sudan. We hope this aid programme is just the beginning of other initiatives that we will undertake to mobilise the humanitarian help and support that is so desperately needed," said H E Akbar Al Baker, CEO of Qatar Airways.

"The aid programme was organised in aid of the people of Lebanon following the tragic explosion in Beirut last month. Working with our sister airlines, partners Qatar Charity, Ali Bin Ali Holding and talabat, the airline has purchased and managed the transport over 250,000 tonnes of medical and essential supplies to impacted regions. This equates to roughly 2,500 full-loaded Boeing 777 freighters," he added.

A local feature report also stated that during this event Qatar Charity continued distributing aid to those in need under the supervision of the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, H E Akbar Al Baker, in support of the rapid deployment of aid. "We need to continue our efforts to provide aid to all healthcare workers across the globe who are working so hard to bring this pandemic under control," he said.

"We also should not forget those who are fighting the disease every day to try to protect and save others," HE Akbar Al Baker said.

"The 6th Qatar Patient Safety Week aims to promote the concept of patient safety at the national level, urges the community to participate in ensuring the health and safety of all healthcare providers, and raises awareness about the importance of the safety of health workers and the work environment to ensure patient safety," he added.

"We are participating with the whole world in this celebration, we are following the theme of this year's event: Health Worker Safety: A Priority for Patient Safety. Acknowledging that health worker safety is the essence of the response to COVID-19 pandemic, showing how we perceive health worker safety and how it is intertwined with patient safety and the safety of our healthcare system as a whole."

H E Akbar Al Baker, CEO of Qatar Airways, said: "It is important that we acknowledge the great efforts and commitment of every worker who took part in this response to COVID-19 Pandemic. I would like to express our gratitude to all healthcare workers across the globe who are working so hard to bring this pandemic under control."

"We also should not forget those who are fighting the disease every day to try to protect and save others," HE Akbar Al Baker said.

"The 6th Qatar Patient Safety Week aims to promote the concept of patient safety at the national level, urges the community to participate in ensuring the health and safety of all healthcare providers, and raises awareness about the importance of the safety of health workers and the work environment to ensure patient safety," he added.
The Ministry of Public Health will start conducting salivae-based COVID-19 tests for children from today (Sunday) as part of a national testing program to gain a better understanding of infection rates. Saliva tests can be easily comparable as saliva from the mouth is a simple sample for children who have been looking at the rate of salivae-based COVID-19 tests for children from today. Health officials have said that the new method of saliva-based tests for COVID-19 is less intrusive for children. The saliva-based test is innovative as it does not require a swab to be inserted into the throat of the like most other Covid-19 tests. In this method, the sample will be collected from saliva by using a new saliva-based test method that is easy and easy to operate for them. This new method will be very easy and convenient for children and school students. It aims to improve the test rate for them.

In such cases, the Ministry has advised people to contact the bank immediately in case of emergency, informing that their bank card has been stolen or misused, urging to use the message once confirmed it is fake. People can also report the message or SMS that contain an electronic link. People who were using WhatsApp or Facebook to contact their bank can also report them.

The Ministry of Public Health, Interior, and Environment, H E Eng. Yousef Ahmed Janahi, with the participation of a group of experts, reviewed the participatory action plan of the urban development under the COVID-19 pandemic as an opportunity to consolidate the strategic dialogue showcased the complexity of the social and environmental challenges we face today, emphasizing the need to engage, corporate organizations, communities, and industry in the process of turning challenges into opportunities for sustainable development. In addition, the policies and strategies that need to be put in place include green buildings, as well as the collection of sample saliva by a new easiest testing method is suitable for a country-wide testing.

The third US-Qatar Strategic Dialogue has showcased the strong bilateral ties between both countries, said Geza C. (QGBC). The dialogue includes a speech by Ambassador in Doha yesterday, Director of Planning and Logic Dialogue, showed the strong partnerships between Qatar and States, Qatar & partner’s said.

"The productive discussions among experts, which were using WhatsApp for the first time, are truly innovative, informing the name of the bank with which they can use the message once confirmed it is fake. People can also report the message or SMS that contain an electronic link. People who were using WhatsApp or Facebook to contact their bank can also report them.

The Ministry of Public Health, Interior, and Environment, H E Eng. Yousef Ahmed Janahi, with the participation of a group of experts, reviewed the participatory action plan of the urban development under the COVID-19 pandemic as an opportunity to consolidate the strategic dialogue showcased the complexity of the social and environmental challenges we face today, emphasizing the need to engage, corporate organizations, communities, and industry in the process of turning challenges into opportunities for sustainable development. In addition, the policies and strategies that need to be put in place include green buildings, as well as the collection of sample saliva by a new easiest testing method is suitable for a country-wide testing.

The third US-Qatar Strategic Dialogue has showcased the strong bilateral ties between both countries, said Geza C. (QGBC). The dialogue includes a speech by Ambassador in Doha yesterday, Director of Planning and Logic Dialogue, showed the strong partnerships between Qatar and States, Qatar & partner’s said.

"The productive discussions among experts, which were using WhatsApp for the first time, are truly innovative, informing the name of the bank with which they can use the message once confirmed it is fake. People can also report the message or SMS that contain an electronic link. People who were using WhatsApp or Facebook to contact their bank can also report them.

The Ministry of Public Health, Interior, and Environment, H E Eng. Yousef Ahmed Janahi, with the participation of a group of experts, reviewed the participatory action plan of the urban development under the COVID-19 pandemic as an opportunity to consolidate the strategic dialogue showcased the complexity of the social and environmental challenges we face today, emphasizing the need to engage, corporate organizations, communities, and industry in the process of turning challenges into opportunities for sustainable development. In addition, the policies and strategies that need to be put in place include green buildings, as well as the collection of sample saliva by a new easiest testing method is suitable for a country-wide testing.

The third US-Qatar Strategic Dialogue has showcased the strong bilateral ties between both countries, said Geza C. (QGBC). The dialogue includes a speech by Ambassador in Doha yesterday, Director of Planning and Logic Dialogue, showed the strong partnerships between Qatar and States, Qatar & partner’s said.

"The productive discussions among experts, which were using WhatsApp for the first time, are truly innovative, informing the name of the bank with which they can use the message once confirmed it is fake. People can also report the message or SMS that contain an electronic link. People who were using WhatsApp or Facebook to contact their bank can also report them.

The Ministry of Public Health, Interior, and Environment, H E Eng. Yousef Ahmed Janahi, with the participation of a group of experts, reviewed the participatory action plan of the urban development under the COVID-19 pandemic as an opportunity to consolidate the strategic dialogue showcased the complexity of the social and environmental challenges we face today, emphasizing the need to engage, corporate organizations, communities, and industry in the process of turning challenges into opportunities for sustainable development. In addition, the policies and strategies that need to be put in place include green buildings, as well as the collection of sample saliva by a new easiest testing method is suitable for a country-wide testing.
World Cup opportunity to build better future for next generations

Permanent Representative of Qatar to the United Nations, HE Ambassador Sheikha Alya Ahmed bin Ali Al Thani, has said that Qatar is proud to host the 2022 World Cup for the first time in the Middle East and the Arab world.

Qatar considers the World Cup an opportunity for Qatar and the region to stimulate social development and build a better future for next generations, HE added.

The Ambassador was speaking at a high-level meeting on the prevention of violent extremism through sport, held in the context of the United Nations Global Program on the Security of Major Sporting Events, and Promotion of Sport and Values as a Tool for the Prevention of Violent Extremism (UNOCT). Ongoing discussions between senior United Nations officials, Member States, and international organisations represented policy makers, sports representatives, and social researchers from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices, of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.

The event preceded the launch of a global campaign and a grant-awarding mechanism for local civil society organisations (CSOs) working on sports-based prevention of violent extremism (PVE). The virtual high-level meeting focused on discussions between senior United Nations Officials, Member States and international organisations representatives, policy makers, and sport personalites committed to the fight against violent extremism.

The President of the International Centre for Sport Security (ICSS) and founder of “Save the Dream” programme, Mohamed bin Hammam, said sport positively affects the lives of millions of people every day, and major sporting events and sports in general, contain unique tools that stimulate positive change.

The event was followed by a technical level International Expert Group Meeting where representatives from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.

Qatar considers the World Cup an important opportunity to project Qatar and the region to the world, as well as an opportunity to promote values and cultural exchange.

The event was followed by a technical level International Expert Group Meeting where representatives from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.

The event was followed by a technical level International Expert Group Meeting where representatives from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.

The event was followed by a technical level International Expert Group Meeting where representatives from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.

The event was followed by a technical level International Expert Group Meeting where representatives from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.

The event was followed by a technical level International Expert Group Meeting where representatives from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.

The event was followed by a technical level International Expert Group Meeting where representatives from governments, international and regional organisations, sport bodies, academics, and CSOs shared experiences and discussed actionable good practices of sports-based interventions aimed at preventing and countering violent extremism that can inspire the inclusion and further acknowledgment of sports within national and regional action plans.
QLM Life and Medical Insurance Company expands global medical network

Saadia Rabiah Al Kuwari, the company’s CEO, said: “This is an important milestone for us. We are excited about the increased access to medical services for our customers around the world. We look forward to continuing to expand our global medical network to support our customers’ needs.”

The company has announced the expansion of its global medical network to include more than 70,000 medical and dental centres worldwide across all continents. The expanded network contains major hospitals, medical centres and pharmacies around the world. QLM provides a help desk with a special representative in some major countries to help and support customers and medical providers with any queries or problems. Through the integrated global medical network, customers can search for a service provider online or speak to a medical provider or service provider with full details of the medical network and its benefits as well as its specialities and services. The implementation of the global medical network will be fully completed after all necessary checks and medical centres before they are added to the network in order to ensure the same standard of medical care all over the world. The expanded network of the global medical network will also significantly help to develop its reputation and will make the company more attractive to its key customers the growing number of customers and the local and regional market.

“QLM is preparing for a major start by developing its products to suit the largest segment of its customer audience. Accordingly, we have expanded our global medical network to include more than 70,000 medical and dental centres around the world spread across all continents,” said Mr. Al Mannai.

Salem Al Mannai affine e that QLM is preparing for a major start by developing its products to suit the largest segment of its customer audience. Accordingly, we have expanded our global medical network to include more than 70,000 medical and dental centres around the world spread across all continents.

The implementation of the global medical network will be fully completed after all necessary checks and medical centres before they are added to the network in order to ensure the same standard of medical care all over the world. The expanded network of the global medical network will also significantly help to develop its reputation and will make the company more attractive to its key customers the growing number of customers and the local and regional market.

“QLM is preparing for a major start by developing its products to suit the largest segment of its customer audience. Accordingly, we have expanded our global medical network to include more than 70,000 medical and dental centres around the world spread across all continents,” said Mr. Al Mannai.

Salem Al Mannai affine e that QLM is preparing for a major start by developing its products to suit the largest segment of its customer audience. Accordingly, we have expanded our global medical network to include more than 70,000 medical and dental centres around the world spread across all continents.

The implementation of the global medical network will be fully completed after all necessary checks and medical centres before they are added to the network in order to ensure the same standard of medical care all over the world. The expanded network of the global medical network will also significantly help to develop its reputation and will make the company more attractive to its key customers the growing number of customers and the local and regional market.
Abdullah bin Jobara Al Rumaihi and Olena Pryduvalova, Ivan Marchuk, Viktor Sydorenko, a rich collection of dozens of Ukrainian Embassy in Qatar. was recently launched by the Era Art virtual museum which inaugural show of “Ukraine: New Ukrainian artists was unveiled RA YNALD C RIVERA.

Field of research, scientific studies and both parties. Scientific renaissance and constructive research cooperation that supports the path of students of the College of Engineering and their training programs.

He added: “Barwa Real Estate Group always calls for such collaborations and integration with Qatar University to raise the competitiveness of this vital sector in conducting research and academic studies. In addition to developing the skills of youth who are the main element for the success of long-term development plans in order to achieve Qatar’s National Vision 2030.”

Al Rumaihi explained that the MoU with Qatar University will support the different aspects of research and scientific studies that will contribute to developing the real estate sector and establishing its various projects.

He added that Barwa has got all the required expertise, making it a distinguished and important partner for the university, in order to achieve a scientific and constructive research cooperation that supports the curiosity and aspirations of the region. This will enhance areas of sharing expertise and scientific research, as well as the academic and professional cooperation to support students of the College of Engineering and their training programs.

The newly launched arts and workshops at the College of Engineering through the formation of joint work-steps between the two parties. Abdullah bin Jihara Al Rumali said: “This signing is establishing a new phase of constructive cooperation with Qatar University, the leading educational institution in the fields of academic and research excellence in this region. This will enhance areas of sharing expertise and scientific research, as well as the academic and professional cooperation to support students of the College of Engineering and their training programs.”

The signing of this memorandum comes within the framework of Qatar University’s permanent commitment to community service and cooperation with the private sector on issues that contribute to the development of this sector.

The constructive cooperation between Qatar University and Barwa Real Estate Group is diversified and in line with the two institutions’ plans to develop the capabilities of Qatar youth, and in this context comes the signing of the MoU, which will enable the two parties to exchange experiences and joint research.”

Dr Ali Derham said that the memorandum also includes cooperation in the field of scientific research, various studies, and field training, all of which are important, as the university seeks to make this partnership an actual beginning for training that ends with the employment of graduates in the real estate production sites in this important national institution.

The signing of this memorandum comes within the framework of Qatar University’s permanent commitment to community service and cooperation with the private sector on issues that contribute to the development of this sector.

The constructive cooperation between Qatar University and Barwa Real Estate Group is diversified and in line with the two institutions’ plans to develop the capabilities of Qatar youth, and in this context comes the signing of the MoU, which will enable the two parties to exchange experiences and joint research.”

Dr Ali Derham said that the memorandum also includes cooperation in the field of scientific research, various studies, and field training, all of which are important, as the university seeks to make this partnership an actual beginning for training that ends with the employment of graduates in the real estate production sites in this important national institution.

The signing of this memorandum comes within the framework of Qatar University’s permanent commitment to community service and cooperation with the private sector on issues that contribute to the development of this sector.

The constructive cooperation between Qatar University and Barwa Real Estate Group is diversified and in line with the two institutions’ plans to develop the capabilities of Qatar youth, and in this context comes the signing of the MoU, which will enable the two parties to exchange experiences and joint research.”

Dr Ali Derham said that the memorandum also includes cooperation in the field of scientific research, various studies, and field training, all of which are important, as the university seeks to make this partnership an actual beginning for training that ends with the employment of graduates in the real estate production sites in this important national institution.

The signing of this memorandum comes within the framework of Qatar University’s permanent commitment to community service and cooperation with the private sector on issues that contribute to the development of this sector.

The constructive cooperation between Qatar University and Barwa Real Estate Group is diversified and in line with the two institutions’ plans to develop the capabilities of Qatar youth, and in this context comes the signing of the MoU, which will enable the two parties to exchange experiences and joint research.”

Dr Ali Derham said that the memorandum also includes cooperation in the field of scientific research, various studies, and field training, all of which are important, as the university seeks to make this partnership an actual beginning for training that ends with the employment of graduates in the real estate production sites in this important national institution.

The signing of this memorandum comes within the framework of Qatar University’s permanent commitment to community service and cooperation with the private sector on issues that contribute to the development of this sector.

The constructive cooperation between Qatar University and Barwa Real Estate Group is diversified and in line with the two institutions’ plans to develop the capabilities of Qatar youth, and in this context comes the signing of the MoU, which will enable the two parties to exchange experiences and joint research.”

Dr Ali Derham said that the memorandum also includes cooperation in the field of scientific research, various studies, and field training, all of which are important, as the university seeks to make this partnership an actual beginning for training that ends with the employment of graduates in the real estate production sites in this important national institution.

The signing of this memorandum comes within the framework of Qatar University’s permanent commitment to community service and cooperation with the private sector on issues that contribute to the development of this sector.

The constructive cooperation between Qatar University and Barwa Real Estate Group is diversified and in line with the two institutions’ plans to develop the capabilities of Qatar youth, and in this context comes the signing of the MoU, which will enable the two parties to exchange experiences and joint research.”

Dr Ali Derham said that the memorandum also includes cooperation in the field of scientific research, various studies, and field training, all of which are important, as the university seeks to make this partnership an actual beginning for training that ends with the employment of graduates in the real estate production sites in this important national institution.

The signing of this memorandum comes within the framework of Qatar University’s permanent commitment to community service and cooperation with the private sector on issues that contribute to the development of this sector.

The constructive cooperation between Qatar University and Barwa Real Estate Group is diversified and in line with the two institutions’ plans to develop the capabilities of Qatar youth, and in this context comes the signing of the MoU, which will enable the two parties to exchange experiences and joint research.”

Dr Ali Derham said that the memorandum also includes cooperation in the field of scientific research, various studies, and field training, all of which are important, as the university seeks to make this partnership an actual beginning for training that ends with the employment of graduates in the real estate production sites in this important national institution.
Lebanese party offers plan to resolve row over new cabinet

A party led by Lebanon’s Christian president made a proposal on Sunday that blocked the formation of a new cabinet after days of political talks failed to deliver the country out of its 2017-2019 crisis.
The proposal, put forward yesterday, involved handing major ministries to smaller sectarian groups in a country where power is shared between Muslims and Christians. There was no immediate comment from officials in Shia Muslim groups, who have insisted on keeping several top posts. Lebanon’s efforts to rectify sectarian power-sharing have failed to bring about a government in the last nine months.

The leader of the Free Patriotic Movement (FPM), which is the party founded by President Michel Aoun’s father, proposed ‘unilateral measures’ to distribute the “vital tasks” of the technocratic cabinet, which was sworn in last October.

Aoun said the proposal was broadcast live on national television on Sunday but did not show it. He did not elaborate on what ‘vital tasks’ would be included.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

In a statement, the three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

The three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

In a statement, the three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

In a statement, the three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.

In a letter to the 15-member body, the three private parties to the nuclear deal and long-time US allies said any decision or action taken to reimpose UN sanctions would be “unlawful and void of legal effect.” The Christians and Armenians, who are long-time US allies, said they would take all necessary steps to prevent the nuclear agreement being unilaterally renounced.

The three UN Security Council resolutions that terminated UN sanctions relief on Iran remain in force.
Ethiopia files terror charges against opposition leaders

The charges — which could bring life imprisonment — relate to violence that erupted after the shooting death in June of Hachalu Hundessa, a popular singer from the Oromo ethnic group who gave voice to Oromo feelings of political and economic marginalisation.

Amnesty International said that following Hachalu’s June 29, 2020, killing, up to 200 people were killed in Oromo violence and clashes with soldiers, and that under- scored security challenges facing Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed, winner of last year’s Nobel Peace Prize.

Jawar and Bekele were among more than 5,000 people caught up in subsequent mass arrests. Ethiopia’s government said that Abiy is seeing on the unrest as evidence against political opponents and critics. The attorney general’s office announced charges against 24 suspects in a case connected to Hachalu’s killing.

These include “trying to incite ethnic conflict in order to cause citizens to turn against their fellow citizens”.

Among the other suspects are several high-profile Oromo activists living abroad like prominent Oromo activist Tsegaye Regassa and former Abiy-allied critic Berhanemushet Abebe.

The plane was operated by GainJet, a Hungarian carrier that announced earlier this week it is halting operations in line with COVID-19 travel restrictions.

Paul Rusesabagina, the hero of the film Hotel Rwanda, who was arrested last month in Kenya, was duped into flying to Kigali: Report

Paul Rusesabagina, the hero of the film Hotel Rwanda, who was arrested last month in Kenya, was duped into flying to Kigali.

Rusesabagina, a Hutu, became famous after the Holocaust film in which he is credited with saving the lives of 1,200 people at the hotel he ran during the 1994 genocide.

His report was submitted Friday to the prosecutor, who said that “putting Jawar on trial risks receiving proper medical care. It’s very astonishing. I’m 100 years old, and I have a barrier just steps from the sea.”

Rusesabagina, who was arrested last month in Kenya, was duped into flying to Kigali.

The virus has infected at least 46,000 people in Kenya, which ranks 17 out of 180 countries on a corruption per- ception index compiled by the non-governmental organisation Transparency International.

Several Kenyan busi- nessmen have already been implicated in an international kick- back scandal involving billions of euros.

A cargo plane crashed yesterday at the international airport in Mogadishu, three injured

A cargo plane crashed yesterday at the international airport in Mogadishu, Somalia, the country’s transport minister said.

The plane was operated by Garfield, a charter company based in Ethiopia that is owned by Kagera, the report said.

Ethiopia announces terrorism at shooting death in June of Hachalu Hundessa, a popular singer from the Oromo ethnic group who gave voice to Oromo feelings of political and economic marginalisation.

ANATOLIA — Nigerians in Edo were expected to elect a new governor amid heavy police presence yesterday.

The vote was held as more than 1.7 million voters milled together could completely ignore,” nurse Manjari and supply head Jonah Manjari and supply head Jonah Manjari and supply head Jonah Manjari and supply head Jonah Manjari and supply head Jonah Manjari.

Responding to the NYT’s Friday report, Rusesabagina fled from the US to Dubai on Oct. 8, 2011 and before filing a princi- ple clash, he thought he was heading to Bujumbura in Burundi which neighbours Rwanda.

The plane was operated by Garfield, a charter company based in Ethiopia that is owned by Kagera, the report said.

The virus has infected at least 46,000 people in Kenya, which ranks 17 out of 180 countries on a corruption per- ception index compiled by the non-governmental organisation Transparency International.

A cargo plane crashed yesterday at the international airport in Mogadishu, Somalia, the country’s transport minister said.

The plane was operated by Garfield, a charter company based in Ethiopia that is owned by Kagera, the report said.

The virus has infected at least 46,000 people in Kenya, which ranks 17 out of 180 countries on a corruption per- ception index compiled by the non-governmental organisation Transparency International.
Facebook moves to cool hot talk on worker message board

SUNDAY 20 SEPTEMBER 2020

PENINSULA

EDITORIAL

Saving the saviours

Ollie Shead for Sunday and Health at Work which falls on September 17 every year, the Ministry of Public Health (MoPH) yesterday concluded a celebration of the 6th Qatar Patient Safety Week. This year’s celebration held under the theme “Patient Safety is Our Passion” is focused on acknowledging the critical role in providing health services which are not only safe but also quality.

World Health Organization estimates that there are more than 420,000 deaths each year in health and social services worldwide. As such, they call for the front line in recognizing the importance of the role of safety in education and training continuous improvement. The numbers in some countries lacking personal protective equipment reach 35% of health workers exposed to infections and death.

Therefore, it is difficult to draw line between safety of patients and safety of health staff, and this is why the WHO said: “No country, hospital or clinic can sweep its eyes off health workers, because they are the largest risk group.”

Exposure to health risk may not be new to health workers, but what makes it a challenge is the reaction of infectious diseases, but the COVID-19 has made this year’s challenge more urgent and clear.

The Qatar Patient Safety Week is an annual event organised by MoPH since the national level since 2014 as an educational and awareness initiative. The Ministry uses the event to highlight several health issues and create a platform to show achievements and promote partnerships keeping the goal to improve quality and patient safety.

The Minister of Public Health E.H. Dr. Haneen Mohammad Al-Kuwari took the advantage of the event to remind the public of the role of health workers and employees to show gratitude to all healthcare workers across the globe that struggled and went out of their way to bring this pandemic under control.

For instance, in several landscapes in India were illuminated in orange as a symbolic gesture in recognition of the efforts of health workers by providing safe healthcare services to patients daily, in addition to getting them from the current emergency and send awareness messages to the entire population. As a result of all of these, the World Health Organization has declared its intention to ensure continued availability, access to delivery services, and their health and safety, which is crucial in the current COVID-19 pandemic, deserve appreciation and respect from everyone in Qatar and the entire world.

Facebook on Thursday said it is expanding workplace policy to prevent clashes over politics, racial justice or the pandemic on its internal employee message board.

Chief executive Mark Zuckerberg discussed the move during a question-and-answer session with employees.

What’s heard from our employees is that they want to talk about their concerns, debates on social and political issues rather than see them inappropriately in their work environment. In a floor open speech in Jo Osborne said in response to an SEP meeting:

“We’re up-elevating our employees’ workplace tools to ensure our culture remains respectful and inclusive.” Facebook is strengthening its harassment policy so that employees from under-represented communities don’t face hostile work environments, according to Osborne.

The Silicon Valley-based internet giant said it will also make it clear which part of its Workplace internal message board is for discussions concerning political or social issues, and carefully curate content.

Facebook’s move came on the heels of a CNBC report that Google is calling on workers to stop publicly managing internal message boards due to sparking complaints about heated, personal, or political conversations.

A shift to remote work at Google has ramped up use of internal message boards for workers to exchange ideas and concerns about their job, according to the report.

Facebook, on the other hand, said its “compliance and safety teams” have worked on initiatives to prevent clashes over politics, racial justice or the pandemic on its internal employee message board.

PENINSULA

Facebook moves to cool hot talk on worker message board

Quote of the day

“A woman carries trash by the sea at Tamang Island, Panay, Philippines, recently.”

Facebook moves to cool hot talk on worker message board

www.thepeninsula.qa

Facebook on Thursday said it is expanding workplace policy to prevent clashes over politics, racial justice or the pandemic on its internal employee message board.

Chief executive Mark Zuckerberg discussed the move during a question-and-answer session with employees.

What’s heard from our employees is that they want to talk about their concerns, debates on social and political issues rather than see them inappropriately in their work environment. In a floor open speech in Jo Osborne said in response to an SEP meeting:

“We’re up-elevating our employees’ workplace tools to ensure our culture remains respectful and inclusive.” Facebook is strengthening its harassment policy so that employees from under-represented communities don’t face hostile work environments, according to Osborne.

The Silicon Valley-based internet giant said it will also make it clear which part of its Workplace internal message board is for discussions concerning political or social issues, and carefully curate content.

Facebook’s move came on the heels of a CNBC report that Google is calling on workers to stop publicly managing internal message boards due to sparking complaints about heated, personal, or political conversations.

A shift to remote work at Google has ramped up use of internal message boards for workers to exchange ideas and concerns about their job, according to the report.

Facebook, on the other hand, said its “compliance and safety teams” have worked on initiatives to prevent clashes over politics, racial justice or the pandemic on its internal employee message board.

www.thepeninsula.qa
“Black Power” was an expansive, revolutionary social and political movement in the 1960s and 1970s. Despite its name, Black Power was not an all-encompassing ideology; rather, it encompassed a wide range of beliefs and strategies that empowered black communities and individuals in the United States. The movement was rooted in the successes of the Civil Rights Movement and the gains made by African Americans, but it went beyond legal victories and focused on creating a more equitable and just society. Black Power advocates sought to redefine black identity and advance a new, more assertive civil rights agenda. They called for self-reliance, self-defense, and black community control to address the systemic oppression and violence experienced by black people. Black Power also emphasized cultural expression, art, and music as tools for resistance and empowerment. The movement was not confined to the United States; it resonated globally and inspired similar movements in other parts of the world. Despite its importance, the history of Black Power is not well known or understood. How can we recover and retell the stories of this critical period in American history? What can we learn from the past that might inform our present and future actions? These are some of the questions this seminar will explore.
INDIA ARRESTS 8 AL QAEDA MEN PLANNING ATTACKS

India's National Investigation Agency (NIA) said yesterday it has arrested eight men who were planning a terrorist attack across the country, including the capital New Delhi.

The group was planning to undertake isolated and indiscriminate vandalizations in India in order to create panic and stir terror in their minds, the NIA said in a news release.

These arrested ‘were motivated to perpetrate terrorist attacks at multiple places’ including the capital New Delhi.

Six of the men were arrested from West Bengal and two in the north-eastern state of Assam, the NIA said, adding the individuals were ‘associated with Pakistan-sponsored module of Al Qaeda’.

India has stepped up its offensive against militants in the region, especially after the recent killing of Basudeb Mandal in Kashinagar and elsewhere.

Their latest raid, the NIA said, saw sharp weapons, domes- tic grenades and locally fabricated body armour. The magnum-sized firearms were manufactured in North Bengal and a steel dome-shaped gas cylinder was used.

The NIA said the group has been identified as Mithrab Hussain, one of its chief coordinators; Moharram Bishwas, all three from the north-eastern state of Assam. They were picked up from Kanchi. While Neemal Prasad was in Assam, Abul Sultana was picked up from West Bengal.

Amita Mohon Mandal, Lou Yeung Ahmad, Abimal Kamar and Mithrab Hussain are accused of plotting all sorts of militancy.

They were diversified from various walks of life to form the group. They were all involved in providing logistics to the militants.

Amita Mohon Mandal was arrested from East Asia.

Mandal’s chief cabinet secretary’s chief cabinet secretary in August 2011, along with many other top ministers, visited the shrine in South Korea and China and also in India, paid respect at the shrine in 2013 sparked outrage for war dead.

“During the raids the agency also seized huge cache of firearms. They bought the firearms to hide procurement of huge amount of required to make the IDEs,” a senior NIA official related to the probe, said.

Village head (right) takes a snapshot from a mobile phone at a COVID-19 test centre in Alibaug, Maharashtra.

Virus: India may shorten House session

REUTERS — NEW DELHI

India’s Parliament session that began this week is likely to be cut short after 30 lawmakers were found infected with the coronavirus, two senior parliament officials said, as the number of cases in the country rose to 1,270.

The Indian parliament met for the first time since September 14 and was to last until October 8, but the two officials said its duration could be reduced by a week.

“Since the commencement of the session the number of coronavirus infections in the parliament has increased,” a senior parliament official, who did not want to be named, said.

India added 93,337 new infections in the last 24 hours, taking its total to 8.37 million, the highest single-day caseload in the world since early August, according to a tally.

“India is the second-most

Thousands attend shredding of Bangladesh leader’s body

AP — DHAKA

Ten of thousands of people gathered to mourn the leader of Bangladesh’s banned Islamist group, BNP, who was found yesterday in East Asia.

Allama Shahul Hameid, a local government official, died in Bangladesh in 2013 sparked outrage for war dead.

His death came just a day after an unprecedented level of students, teachers and community members from all over the country for the first time since December 2013, after a flurry of activity was seen ahead of the anniversary.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.

Abe had visited the shrine, just days after Yoshihide Suga visited him, to show his respect as Japan’s longest-serving leader. Abe visited the shrine for the first time in his career, in December 2013, when he was the leader of the Liberal Democratic Party, and his visit was seen as a bid to boost his popularity.
The appearance of the Red Shirts, besides boosting the protesters’ numbers, was a new movement to the political battlefield that Thailand endured for a large part of the last two decades. The Red Shirts were a movement of mostly poor rural Thais who supported populist former PM Thaksin Shinawatra.

Workers stand on artisan sand or crushed dolomite, dumped on a portion of Manila Bay as part of the government’s efforts to rehabilitate and widen the polluted coastline. In Manila, Philippines, yesterday.

Philippines’ Duterte keeps one metre social distancing rule

A top US military attended the funeral of Thailand’s former prime minister Lee Teng-hui yesterday.

Anti-government protesters take part in a pro-democracy rally in Bangkok, Thailand, yesterday.

US waives up Trump visit as China flexes muscle

AFP — 20 SEPTEMBER 2020

President Rodrigo Duterte has decided to retain the 1-meter social distancing requirement on public transportation, despite a recent increase in infections, to reduce crowds and prevent the spread of the coronavirus.

The Philippines is one of several countries where officials have warned that reducing gaps between passengers and workers in buses and jeepneys could result in the spread of the virus.

“Evaluations have been made and the decision has been made that the Queensland government requires at least 1-metre physical distancing in public transport to reduce coronavirus,” the DOT spokesman said yesterday.

It has called for a prison sentence of three to 15 years for anyone found guilty of defying the royal institution.

Read more: Duterte keeps one metre social distancing rule

Manila Bay gets fake sand make-over

Philippines’ Duterte keeps one metre social distancing rule

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

The cross-sectional study conducted from May to July by Lee’s team, which included nearly 200 people from three groups — health-care, community and non-health workers — found that, in the next 2-3 months 60 percent of the general population will become immune to COVID-19.

The students are too young to have been caught up in the growth of political parties that rolled over during a decade of political turmoil, said Ken Raymond, a North Carolina professor emeritus and veteran Thai studies scholar.

They believe that Prayuth, who has ruled for 11SUNDAY

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Hekmatyar keen to join hands with Taliban

Hekmatyar keen to join hands with Taliban

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Hekmatyar keen to join hands with Taliban

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.

Malcolm MacLaren, an American journalist, is writing a book about the Taliban, which he was banned from entering for a year.
Prime Minister Boris Johnson said on Friday that he did not want another national lockdown but that new restrictions may be needed because the country was facing an "inevitable" second wave of COVID-19. He said some additional measures are likely to be needed sooner rather than later. "Finger said.

Ministers were on Friday reported to be considering a second national lockdown, with new COVID-19 cases already at their highest level since May. Admissions rising and severe outbreaks of coronavirus in the northern parts of England and London.

"Right now we're at about the level of the infection we were seeing at the beginning of February, and if we leave it unchecked for two weeks we'll be back at levels we were seeing very much back in March and that's going to -- could cause serious trouble," he said.

Government data showed yesterday that 800 more than on Friday and the daily highest total since May 8, based on positive test results.

The sharp rise in infections has one of the highest COVID-19 cases is set to begin a partial lockdown aimed at halting the spread of the new coronavirus, according to a report on Thursday in the latest testing of the virus.

"The officer involved has been suspended in Charnwood, which has one of the highest infection rates in the UK, in its national health authority for its popularity crisis, a result of phone conversations between the Golden Dawn members the night was muzzled investigating magistrates had argued the attack was carried out with the knowledge of senior party members.

"We are aware of the attack on the flight into the UK on February 24th, said for Britain's partner in Greece's war. The officer involved has been suspended in Charnwood, which has one of the highest infection rates in the UK, in its national health authority for its popularity crisis, a result of phone conversations between the Golden Dawn members the night was muzzled investigating magistrates had argued the attack was carried out with the knowledge of senior party members.

"We are aware of the attack on the flight into the UK on February 24th, said for Britain's partner in Greece's war. The officer involved has been suspended in Charnwood, which has one of the highest infection rates in the UK, in its national health authority for its popularity crisis, a result of phone conversations between the Golden Dawn members the night was muzzled investigating magistrates had argued the attack was carried out with the knowledge of senior party members.

"We are aware of the attack on the flight into the UK on February 24th, said for Britain's partner in Greece's war. The officer involved has been suspended in Charnwood, which has one of the highest infection rates in the UK, in its national health authority for its popularity crisis, a result of phone conversations between the Golden Dawn members the night was muzzled investigating magistrates had argued the attack was carried out with the knowledge of senior party members.

"We are aware of the attack on the flight into the UK on February 24th, said for Britain's partner in Greece's war. The officer involved has been suspended in Charnwood, which has one of the highest infection rates in the UK, in its national health authority for its popularity crisis, a result of phone conversations between the Golden Dawn members the night was muzzled investigating magistrates had argued the attack was carried out with the knowledge of senior party members.

"We are aware of the attack on the flight into the UK on February 24th, said for Britain's partner in Greece's war. The officer involved has been suspended in Charnwood, which has one of the highest infection rates in the UK, in its national health authority for its popularity crisis, a result of phone conversations between the Golden Dawn members the night was muzzled investigating magistrates had argued the attack was carried out with the knowledge of senior party members.
The Kremlin has dismissed suggestions that Navalny was poisoned with a nerve agent. The message is characteristic of a government that is “ill at ease” and looking to shift blame.
Maduro has so far failed to-undertake new elections, stretchout his delayed census and review

the 2018 vote, which he proclaimed as “a war criminal” with US backing. Guaidó spoke as Pompeo was due to leave

in a war against Venezuela,” he said of the political heir to late

leftist President Hugo Chávez.

After hours of debate,

voting 131-98, with 19

abstaining. The opposition had alleged fraud

in the March 10 ballot,

which a re-run of a fraught

ballot would be required for the balloting.

Pompeo. Duque spoke as

Pompeo was due to leave

in a war against Venezuela,” he

said of the political heir to late

leftist President Hugo Chávez.

After hours of debate,

voting 131-98, with 19

abstaining. The opposition had alleged fraud

in the March 10 ballot,

which a re-run of a fraught

ballot would be required for

the balloting.

Pompeo. Duque spoke as

Pompeo was due to leave

in a war against Venezuela,” he

said of the political heir to late

leftist President Hugo Chávez.

After hours of debate,

voting 131-98, with 19

abstaining. The opposition had alleged fraud

in the March 10 ballot,

which a re-run of a fraught

ballot would be required for

the balloting.

Pompeo. Duque spoke as

Pompeo was due to leave

in a war against Venezuela,” he

said of the political heir to late

leftist President Hugo Chávez.

After hours of debate,

voting 131-98, with 19

abstaining. The opposition had alleged fraud

in the March 10 ballot,

which a re-run of a fraught

ballot would be required for

the balloting.

Pompeo. Duque spoke as

Pompeo was due to leave

in a war against Venezuela,” he

said of the political heir to late

leftist President Hugo Chávez.

After hours of debate,

voting 131-98, with 19

abstaining. The opposition had alleged fraud

in the March 10 ballot,

which a re-run of a fraught

ballot would be required for

the balloting.

Pompeo. Duque spoke as

Pompeo was due to leave

in a war against Venezuela,” he

said of the political heir to late

leftist President Hugo Chávez.

After hours of debate,

voting 131-98, with 19

abstaining. The opposition had alleged fraud

in the March 10 ballot,

which a re-run of a fraught

ballot would be required for

the balloting.
US Supreme Court Justice Ginsburg dies at 87

A forceful political battle shaped up the future of the US Supreme Court yesterday, with President Donald Trump saying he would quickly name a successor to liberal Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, a move that would tip the court further to the right.

The short list of potential nominees includes two women jurists: Judge Amy Coney Barrett and Barbara Lagoa, according to a source close to the White House.

Obama himself yesterday called on Senate Republicans to honor what he called “invented” 2016 principle. “A blueprint of the law – and of everyday fairness – is that no apply rules with consistency, and not based on what’s convenient or advantageous to the moment,” Obama said in a statement posted online. “The rule of law is the lifeblood of our courts, the fundamental cornerstone of democracy all depend on that basic principle.”

Barrett has generated considerable interest in conservative circles. A devout Catholic, she was a legal scholar at Notre Dame Law School in Indiana before Trump appointed her to the Chi- cago-based 7th Circuit in 2017.

A Barrett nomination would likely prompt contro- versy, as her strong conserv- ative views, her work in the US Attorney’s office, and her opposition to abortion rights could prompt abortion rights opponents to elevate the landmark 1973 Roe v. Wade case above others.

Lagaras has served on the DSCC’s US Circuit Court of Appeals for less than a year after being appointed by Trump and con- firmed by the Senate on an 85-12 vote. She has also spent less than a year in her position and has said she would not overturn the landmark 1973 Roe v. Wade case above others.
A man climbed the nearly 210 metre tall Tour Montparnasse, in Paris, on Friday, as he is blocked by the security services who alighted to reach him.

Man arrested scaling tallest building in Paris

A man was arrested on Friday after clambering up the facade of the Tour Montparnasse, the tallest building in Paris, a police source said.

The unidentified climber, who used climbing gear and a rope, was detained after he got to the top of the 175-metre high structure near the Montparnasse railway station, the source said.

The climber was arrested early on Friday after he was spotted by a rescue worker who recognised him and contacted the police.

The climber was able to reach the roof of the building, according to the police source.

He was then arrested by police officers who used a water cannon to disperse the crowd around the building.

A police car was seen blocking the access to the building.

A spokesman for the Paris police department said the climber was arrested for scaling the building without permission.

The climber was taken to a hospital for a medical examination.

The incident is being investigated by police.

Road show: Reality show with award contestant with trip to International Space Station

A US-based production company is pitching a reality TV show that would allow a contestant to embark on a space odyssey as a part of the company’s “Space Hercules” campaign.

The show would feature a contestant who would be aboard a space station set to travel to the International Space Station (ISS) for a week-long stay.

The contestant would have the opportunity to experience the weightlessness of space and perform tasks typically performed by astronauts.

The show would be produced by Axiom Space, which procures commercial opportunities in low-Earth orbit.

The company is also in discussions to partner with Axiom Space, which procures opportunities to become a preeminent investor in the space industry.

The show will follow the winning contestant who would win a trip to the International Space Station.

The unscripted casting contest would be the first of its kind in the United States and would offer a unique opportunity to become a part of the space industry.

The show will also feature a panel of experts, including astronauts, space entrepreneurs, and experts in the field of space exploration.

The contestant would have the opportunity to perform tasks such as conducting scientific experiments, performing maintenance tasks, and participating in spacewalks.

The show will be produced by a team of experienced producers and will be broadcast on major networks.

The show will also feature a panel of experts, including astronauts, space entrepreneurs, and experts in the field of space exploration.

The contestant would have the opportunity to perform tasks such as conducting scientific experiments, performing maintenance tasks, and participating in spacewalks.