Qatar’s retail sector is again buzzing with activity as shoppers are back to downtowns with family and friends. Residents’ shopping sprees have set the cash register ringing at the malls, hypermarkets and showrooms which have opened their doors after implementing all the safety measures prescribed by authorities.

Better connectivity with start of Doha Metro and permission to allow children to enter malls have increased the flow of shoppers to downtowns.

Safety measures taken by malls and hypermarkets have instilled greater confidence among residents, encouraging them shop with their family members.

We are delighted to welcome back our younger shoppers who can delight in the open space provided by the wide malls and ambient space afforded by the design of Festival City. With precautionary measures remaining in force throughout all our reopening phases, we have seen a steady influx of visitors to the Mall. Now including families of all ages allowed to re-enter the Mall,” Robert Hall, General Manager of Doha Festival City told The Peninsula.

“This decision comes at the perfect time for families to return to the Mall for the Back to School and Back to Shopping retail offers. Families can now shop from a myriad of retail stores for all their school essentials with the utmost confidence. Physical distancing in the mall, regular sanitisation, hygiene kiosks and social distancing stickers in common queuing areas, such as the food court, dining outlets and restrooms, have been installed to help shoppers be reminded to keep the required physical distance as set forth in the guidelines by the authorities,” said Hall, elaborating about the measures taken by Doha Festival City for customers’ and staff safety.

Parents are happy with the decision to allow children to enter malls and hypermarkets. Earlier the families were avoiding going to malls because it was difficult to go for shopping, leaving kids at home. Once children are allowed, we have received our weekly shopping with family,” a resident told The Peninsula.

“Malls are not just shopping destinations; they have now become a place for family outings. They have cinemas, restaurants, entertainment and showrooms, which makes them a perfect place for family outings. The weather is still hot and families want to go to parks or beaches during the afternoon. Reopening of malls is a great relief during summer time, as we have nowhere else to go for family outing,” another resident told The Peninsula.

The food court outlets, dining areas, and cinemas have undergone thorough sanitisation to welcome the returning visitors and serve them in a world-class hygiene and safe environment. Due to COVID-19 restrictions, youngsters should be accompanied by their parents.

On Saturday it lifted force majeure on several fields, including “Sahil” fields and ports but not other fields. It said the blockade would still do a lot of damage to Tripoli.

The president admitted attacks and also flooding, which may have continued.

The president also said a joint venture with Spain's Repsol and Italy's Eni was not breaking any law.

The use of artificial intelligence (AI) in personalising and improving customer service is rapidly advancing. A recent study by Accenture predicted that by 2025, AI will be responsible for 30% of customer interactions. This shift towards AI-driven customer service is being driven by a desire for more efficient and effective interactions, as well as a response to the rapid pace of change in the customer landscape.

AI technologies such as chatbots and virtual assistants are being implemented to help businesses respond to customer queries and provide support. These tools can process large volumes of data quickly and accurately, allowing businesses to provide timely and relevant information to customers.

However, implementing AI in customer service is not without its challenges. Businesses need to ensure that the AI systems they use are effective, reliable, and respectful of customer privacy. They also need to carefully consider how the use of AI will impact their employees and the customer experience.

Despite these challenges, the benefits of AI in customer service are significant. By automating routine tasks and providing 24/7 support, businesses can improve customer satisfaction and loyalty.

In conclusion, the use of AI in customer service is a trend that is likely to continue to grow in the coming years. As businesses continue to invest in AI technologies, we can expect to see further innovations and improvements in the way customers interact with businesses.
